“We were too busy making history to record history.”

-former Florida State Vice President
FLORIDA DISASTER.org
Florida Division of Emergency Management

Visit the Official SERT Website for the Latest Disaster Information

Public | Business | EM Community | Organization | News Media | Kids | Privacy Statement |
Prepare and Stay Aware!

CURRENT SITUATION AND WEATHER UPDATE

Wednesday, October 4, 2006

High Rip Current Threat Continues for Florida's Atlantic Beaches...Isolated Showers Possible in the Keys and along the East Coast Counties through Thursday...Dry Season Starting Earlier than Normal This Year...Hot Afternoon Temperatures Persist this Week...Tropics Remain Quiet...

Gusty onshore winds along the east coast will continue to produce a Moderate to High risk of rip currents today and...

FEMA COMPETITIVE GRANT DEADLINE OCTOBER 6th

TO: All Agency Heads, SERT ECO’s and ESF’s, County Administrators, County Emergency Managers, County Housing Authorities and Interested parties

FEMA competitive grant information request for Home / EM Community

Information for Emergency Management

The tools provided on this page are intended to help members of the emergency management community at all levels of government prepare for, respond to, recover from, and mitigate against any hazard that threatens the state of Florida.

NEW! History of FDEM on Wikipedia

History has proven that one of the best ways to prepare for the future is by learning from the past. The Division of Emergency Management and the State Emergency Response Team individually and collectively, have a vast wealth of historical knowledge and experience. We are currently documenting and capturing our past and present activity on Wikipedia, a free multilingual web-based encyclopedia. For more information on how you can contribute to this project please contact: Princess Ousley (FDEM Public Information Officer)

Daily Situation Reports
Florida Division of Emergency Management

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

The Florida Division of Emergency Management (FDEM) is charged with maintaining a comprehensive statewide program of emergency management. The division is responsible for coordination with efforts of the Federal Government with other departments and agencies, state government, with county and municipal governments and school boards, and with private agencies that have a role in emergency management. The Director is appointed by the Governor of Florida, and serves as an agency head.

Contents [show]

Background

Timeline

1930 - From the 1930s until the mid-70s, financial assistance to victims of natural disaster came from a variety of federal programs.
Editing Florida Division of Emergency Management (section)

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

As you are not currently logged in, your IP address will be recorded in this page's edit history. While you are free to edit without logging in, registering for your own account will conceal IP address and provide you with many other benefits.
Content that violates any copyright will be deleted. Encyclopedic content must be verifiable.
You agree to license your contributions under the GFDL.

Edit summary: /* Background */

Do not copy text from other websites without permission. It will be deleted.

Insert: — — … ° ± – × ÷ ← → · § Sign your name: ~~~~

Wiki markup: {{}} | [] [[]] [[Category:]] #REDIRECT[] <s/></s> <sup></sup> <sub></sub>
Florida Division of Emergency Management

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

The Florida Division of Emergency Management (FDEM) is charged with maintaining a comprehensive statewide program of emergency management. The division is responsible for coordination with efforts of the Federal Government with other departments and agencies of state government, with county and municipal governments and school boards, and with private agencies that have a role in emergency management. The Director is appointed by the Governor of Florida, and serves as an agency head.

Contents [show]

Background

Timeline

1930 - From the 1930s until the mid-70s, financial assistance to victims of natural disaster came from a variety of federal programs.
What do we add?

- Background information
- Time line of events
- Legislation
- Facts
- Pictures

Remember this a historical document, which will serve as the foundation for future projects.
For more information on this project, please feel free to contact me at 850.413.9933, or through email at princess.ousley@dca.state.fl.us